New York Town Clerks Honor Local Company's Service at Rochester Conference

Rochester, NY, August 24, 2007 - The New York State Town Clerk's Association recently held their 25th annual conference in Rochester, New York. The Association's President, Patricia Favreau, Clerk of the Town of Berne, New York presided over the festivities.

At the conference dinner, a special presentation was made to General Code's District Sales Manager, Bruce Cadman, as he was bestowed with the title Honorary Member of the New York State Town Clerk's Association. President Favreau said of Mr. Cadman, "His ability to enhance professional relationships with warm personal friendships has earned him an incredibly loyal group of clients." This Honorary Member award is not presented every year, and has never before been given to a vendor.

Bruce Cadman has been a Sales Representative for Rochester-based company General Code for 27 years, working primarily in the New York and New England regions. When the Association formed 25 years ago, Bruce worked closely with its members who became "a part of my family, part of what I do each and every day."

Mr. Cadman said that being recognized this way by the NYSTCA is "a highlight of my career." He accepted the award on behalf of General Code and all of its employees, saying, "General Code is grateful to all of the Clerks for their loyalty and support. Everyone at General Code is dedicated to providing products that meet the needs of the Clerks and other local government officials and then supporting them with the highest level of customer service possible."

General Code's CEO, Gary Domenico, said, "We all have been touched by Bruce's incredible energy and commitment. The NYSTCA's award is confirmation of that. We are proud of him and appreciate the Association's recognition of Bruce."
